BlackBerry™ Web Client

BlackBerry allows you to access multiple existing email accounts from a single BlackBerry handheld. BlackBerry Web Client* is an internet-based email interface that allows you to add email accounts that you want to work with your handheld. You can set up any of the following accounts* to be wirelessly extended to your handheld: Outlook, Notes, MSN, Hotmail, AOL or POP3/ISP email. Email is redirected wirelessly to your BlackBerry handheld so you can send, receive, forward and reply to messages while you're on the go. You can also view popular document attachments on your handheld.

In addition, a web mail account is provided with each BlackBerry handheld that can also be accessed through the BlackBerry Web Client on an Internet-enabled PC. This new email address (ex. yourname@carrier.blackberry.net) acts as the default email address for your handheld. You won't require additional software to begin using your BlackBerry handheld and it's easy to set up your web client account.

BlackBerry Web Client Key Features

You can access your BlackBerry Web Client account with popular browsers, from an Internet-enabled PC, to:

- Add new email accounts to work with your BlackBerry handheld
- Configure email filters and other BlackBerry settings
- Define which messages are sent to the BlackBerry handheld based on key words and message fields such as 'sent from', subject, priority level
- Set an auto-signature
- Compose, send, read and reply to email with a familiar web-based email experience

How BlackBerry Web Client Works

In your BlackBerry Web Client account, you can add or remove the email accounts that you want to work with your BlackBerry handheld. BlackBerry pulls email from these email accounts into your web client inbox. BlackBerry then redirects messages, pushing email to your BlackBerry handheld. You can limit the number of messages you receive on the BlackBerry handheld by setting filters that monitor key words and message fields.

Messages sent from your handheld will be sent from your new handheld email account address. However, you can configure the 'Sent from' email address to be your regular email address, so messages sent from your handheld appear to originate from your primary email account.

System Requirements

The following components are required to log in to your Internet-based BlackBerry Web Client account:
